Why is it needed?

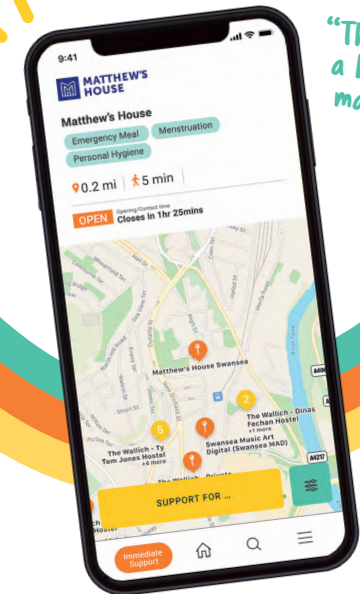

Hope in Swansea was created by Matthew's House, a volunteer-led organisation that offers hospitality and hope in the heart of the city. From 2017-2021 the team have had hundreds of conversations with people going through difficult moments, looking for information that might help them. Seeking to meet this need, numerous posters, handouts, and folders have been made. However, the impossible task has always been ensuring the information is up to date and available in the moment.

Hope in Swansea has the backing of countless organisations who believe in the success of the app. This will eliminate the time-consuming process of gathering information and ensure that it is regularly updated and accurate. Hear from key services in the city what they think of Hope In Swansea and how desperately it is needed for everyone.

How does it work?

All information on Hope in Swansea is uploaded by services themselves and can be updated at any time. Therefore, crucial information such as contact times, phone numbers, and eligibility criteria can be kept up to date. All details will be reviewed and verified by a dedicated team, ensuring that it remains as accurate as possible.

Information on the app is divided by support type and location, with a mapping function that will guide you to the closest support near you. If you are seeking hope, then all you have to do is download the app to your smartphone or visit the website. Hope in Swansea will do the rest.

"This app will be a benefit to so many people."
Platform

Hope in Swansea is free to use and Matthew's House does not seek any direct funding from support services to register on the app. However, if you can donate to help Matthew's House continue to improve and lead Hope in Swansea, please scan this QR code.
